ACADEMY BASKETBALL FIVE INCREASES THIER LEAD.

Keep Clean Slate in Y. M. C. A. Tournament, Defeating Water Sports.

The Academy five in the Y. M. C. A. basketball league took a tighter grip on first place by defeating the Water Sports on Saturday evening at the gymnashum, 29 to 15. The losers put up a good fight in the first half, leading the Academy 12 to 9 at the close of this period, but the speed and reserve power of the Academy told in the second nak, when they held the Water Sports down to three more points, while adding 20 to their own score. Revell's goal shooting was the feature of the second half, as he played rings around his opponent, shooting seven goals from the field in the final fifteen minutes.

Gallivan of the Academy and Prown of the Water Sports became involved in a little fracas, for which both were ruled out of the game late in the second half by the referee, Physical Director Bandlow. The lineups and summary:

By managing to tie the last game of three at the Rose alleys on Saturday evening the Norwich postmen's duckpin five saved themselves from a complete Waterloo at the hands of the visiting postmen from Westerly. Scores around the 60 mark showed that some of the reliables on the Norwich team were hadly off their game, while the Westerly five rolled consistently in the first two games, which they won by good strings, and thereby took the match.

The Westerly men were the guests over night of the Norwich postoffice squad and were given a royal good time.

Don't get it into your head for a minute that the catching job is soft. If you happen to have such a belief, just don the mask and protector some day and then you will suddenly awake from your rarebit dreams, advised a prominent big leaguer in a fanning bee. I have often heard people say that the catching end of the game was the easiest of all; that all the man in that position had to do was to don a fat glove and receive and throw the ball much after the manner of an automaton. The receiving and throwing are the simplest features of the backstop's daily routine. To him the pitcher looks for the signs as to what to serve, while the infielders watch him just as closely to discover what play he intends to pull off on the back refiners.

Then it would seem that the catching end of the game is quite important. Yet the backstop gets little chance to shine or win the plaudits of the multitude; much of, his work is mechanical, while few of his many brainy plays are apparent to the spectators in the stands.

If the throws out ambitious base runners he is only performing part of his many duties; if he fails to stop them stealing he is accused of having a bum arm and is roundly abuseda if he wastes two or three balls and gets a man stealing second or third he is pronounced a brainy backstop. If the player happens to outquess him and he wastes the balls to no purpose, thereby getting the pitcher in the hole, he is accused of using poor judgment.

That catcher also comes in for a lot of abuse that is undeserved and which really should be handed to someone else. Well do I recall a game of last summer that Paddy Livingstone, the defeat, simply because the twirler working the game failed to hold the runners on the bases.

Paddy Livingstone Bumped by Fans.

The Athletics and Detroits were playing one of the many important series waged by these two teams. Krause was working for the Athletics and Livingstone doing the receiving. The Tigers were having their troubles hitting Krause, but when a man reached first he almost invariably scored, for no sooner did he reach first than he immediately stole second and third. Detroit won the game that day. New York, April 2.—Cotton futures closed very steady. from his time. He looks like a good man to be counted in for the distance hike. He reported 39 minutes as his time to Montville, where he passed Johnson, southbound, moving very slowly.

There is another feature of the atching job aside from those already mentioned that the fans never hear of mentioned that the fans never hear of which plays a prominent part in the game. It is the talking of the catcher to the butter, engaging him in conversation for the purpose of taking his mind off his main thought, that of hitting the ball. There are quite a few catchers who never indulge in debate with the batter, yet there are many who seldom let a man get away from the plate without saying something to him. On Sunday afternoon the C.
